At Sempronius the hogs are dying of cholera.

Lient. Reynolds, of the rangers, with twenty men, went with Hardin to Comanche to receive his sentence. He was handcuffed and shackled and placed in a two horse wagon driven by a ranger. He appeared in good health and looked well considering his long confinement. His wife called to see him a few moments before his departure, and seemed much affected at first, but as she conversed aside with her husband she became more composed. She is a prepossessing lady of rather slight figure, and above the medium height, showing traces of care and sorrow upon her face. She has three children, the eldest (a girl) about six years of age. Hardin appeared unusually cheerful, and laughed and talked with those around him. He wrote a note after being placed in the wagon, and seemed perfectly resigned to his fate.

MORE DEATHLY.—Another dismal outrage and deliberate attempt at wholesale murder, similar to the one perpetrated near Palestine some years ago, occurred near Elkhart night before last. It is learned from an expressman that about five o'clock Tuesday evening some fiend fired the trestle over a dry creek between Elkhart and Palestine. The bridge was consumed, but, with the usual promptness and energy of the International officials, it was repaired sufficiently for the passing of trains before midnight.

Subsequently to this another tragic and bridge, 200 yards distant and towards Elkhart, was also fired and burned, necessitating the transfer of freight and passengers. It is stated a third was likewise destroyed.

The destruction of the first Elkhart bridge was accidentally discovered by the engineer of a freight train who saw the fire in time to shut off and put down brakes. Had the passenger train approached after the fire had gone out and owing to the obscure surroundings of the locality, trainmen say she would have been fully wrecked. The train had on board a list of passengers consisting of many ladies and children, larger than usual and their escape seems providential.

A SUCCESSION OF SUICIDES.—From our neighboring Little city of Paris comes a chapter of successive sad incidents that furnishes food for contemplation, while heaving a sad sigh for the terrible calamities. Last Saturday evening a man named Miller made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide. The following day (Sunday) the wife of Dr. Nash, of that city, died from an overdose of morphine taken by mistake in the place of quinine. Mrs. Nash was buried Monday afternoon. Yesterday, at their dinner table, Mr. W. E. Douglas and his young and beautiful wife were discussing the manner of Mrs. Nash's taking off quite earnestly. In the evening Mr. Douglas returned to his home to find his once lovely wife, whom he had left at the dinner table only a few hours before, in fine health, in the embrace of death. She had taken an ounce of nitric acid for the empty vital fluid, plainly, and sadly, told the bitter story. Mr. Douglas is well known here, having formerly been a representative of a St. Louis house, and sold goods in this city. Recently he has been the senior member of the firm of Douglas & Whitfield, doing an extensive grocery business in Paris, Texas, but having lately failed. It is thought that the manner of Mrs. Nash's death led Mrs. Douglas to reflect over the financial reverse of herself and husband, bringing about the desperate resolution that she too would shun off earth's trials and vexations. Mrs. Douglas is said to have been a beautiful, charming and intelligent young woman.

The other day a man took home a book containing several anecdotes showing the power of imagination, and after reading them to his wife, tenderly said: "Now, Angelina, you may sometimes imagine that you hear me kissing the servant girl in the other room, and you see how base a thing it would be to accuse me of such a thing." "John Henry," she replied in a smooth voice, "if ever I imagine such a thing you'll need a doctor within fifteen minutes, no matter what that book says."

Habitual Constipation.
Dramatic purgatives fail to relieve this trouble, and the physicians of the commands of males and females throughout the country, strong medicines do more harm than good, and only tend to weaken the tone of the bowels. A simple remedy will cure it, and for this purpose nothing equals Bailey's Saline Aperient. It is a pleasant and cooling purgative, not irritating, acid stomach, bilious, weak headache, acid stomach, heartburn, dyspepsia, etc. It sells at 50 cents per bottle, and no family should be without it.

An Elegant Preparation.
Designed to meet the public want for a hairmilk bath, restorative, is found in Parker's Hair Balsam. It acts like magic, commencing at the very roots, removing the dandruff, and restoring gray or faded hair to its original youthful color and beauty. Falling hair is immediately checked by its use, preventing baldness, and keeping your hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, that surprises every one. These properties added to its exquisite perfume and purity of flavor, make it a favorite article of toilette table everywhere. Buy a bottle from your druggist, B. F. Graves, druggist, Waco, and forget its merits.
